

May 23, 2013 – Haiti Substations Turned Over to Haitian Government

Perini Management Services, Inc., officially handed over the Canapé Vert electrical substation to the President of Haiti, Michael Martelly, marking the completion of a 15-month project to repair and upgrade five substations in the Port-au-Prince area. The $15 million project was funded and contracted by the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) and carried out in coordination with the Haitian electrical utility, Electricity of Haiti (EDH).

One of the biggest challenges of this project was getting equipment safely unloaded and delivered to the jobsites. Port-au-Prince is a hilly city with narrow meandering streets filled with potholes, pedestrians, and assorted stray animals.
